Note 3: Applicant's amendment raises new issues that would require further consideration and/or search, and raise the issue of new matter. For example, Applicant amended claim 1 to recite "if the detected amount of data is above a reference value," whereas before it read "below a reference value." This change raises the issue of new matter because the specification as orginally filed only performs the focus search if the detected amount is below the value. Also, Applicant amended claim 1 to recite "if the measured focus error is below a constant value," whereas before it read "above a constant value." This change addresses the 112 rejections in the previous Office Action, but requires further consideration and/or search. The previous claim did not make any sense, as the 112 rejections from the previous Office Action indicated, and thus art rejections could not be applied to it, but this part of the amended claim could now potentially be met by prior art, requiring further consideration and/or search.

Note 11: Applicant argues that the amendment overcomes the previous 112 rejections. This may be true: however, the amendment was not entered because it raises the issue of new matter and requires further consideration and/or search, as noted above. Therefore this argument is moot.
